THURSDAY, APRIL 22, 1880.
"WHAT WILL STATE CREDIT DEMOCRATS DO?"

Almost daily, we are asked this question. Of course we can not answer it. We can only judge of results by the general drift of things, and nothing has yet transpired, outside of a few counties, that will serve as an indication of democratic public sentiment. The state convention to name a democratic candidate for governor will not be held until August, and, as yet, we believe the primary meeting to appoint delegates to that meeting have been held in only one county—Wilson. These primaries will not be held, in a majority of the counties, until after the Cincinnati convention. When they are held we may be able to give some opinion as to what the state democrats will do. Now, we only know that state credit men have control of the democratic organization. The state committee is composed, almost unanimously, of state credit men. We presume they will make the most of their opportunities. Their relations to the party are such that they will have an advantage over their repudiating brethren in the organization of the next state convention, and that is a good deal. They rely upon arguments growing out of this being the presidential year, and upon a reasonably sound financial platform which they anticipate will be adopted at Cincinnati. At the outset of the canvass, in what they have already done, we must give them credit for wisdom and shrewdness. Their plan is the only possible one, under which they could hope to silence the batteries of Savage, Thompson, Wilson &

Co. But nothing certain can be predicted until the convention meets, in August, and takes decided action. The results of a political convention are about as uncertain as the verdict of a jury, or a little more so.

But while we are uncertain as to what the result will be we can say, and do say it with all candor and earnestness, we trust, that the state credit democrats will control their state convention. If we must have a democratic governor, give us one who is not contaminated with the dishonest doctrine of repudiation. If we must have a democratic governor, give us one like Senator Clapp, or Governor Porter, and not a noisy, ranting repudiator. We hold that the democratic party is responsible for the existence of a repudiation sentiment in Tennessee, but there are individual democrats, a great many of them, who are sound on this question, and if they can control their party, we shall rejoice to see them do it. We are for Tennessee as against her worst enemies; and, while we regard the success of the democratic party an evil under the most favorable circumstances imaginable, still there are men in the party whom we would much prefer to see at the head of affairs in Tennessee than others. Those who are sincere in their professions, when the time comes for them to act, will consult their own conscience and judgment and be governed by their dictations. If there be any who are not sincere, they will go over to the enemy. We can only wait and see.

THE DEMOCRATIC ELEPHANT.

For several days the telegraph wires have been burdened with mysterious messages, asserting, upon authority, that Samuel J. Tilden, the great centennial reformer, had determined to write a letter to be read at the Syracuse convention, in which he would formally withdraw from the list of presidential candidates. This report has gone into the associated press dispatches twice within a fortnight, backed with the assertion that it came from some one who stands high in the councils of the party. Anti-reformers, like the Memphis Appeal, received the news with great rejoicing, and thousands of democrats no doubt, secretly rejoiced that the presidential gordin knot had at last been cut, and that what had been an insurmountable trouble had been overcome.

But the Syracuse convention has been held. The letter was not endorsed, and his devoted friend and supporter, ex-Governor Robinson, heads the list of delegates to Cincinnati. Samuel is a candidate, and a formidable one. He will go to Cincinnati with a full barrel and a strong following. The only way to defeat him is to vote him down. This is a sort of heroic treatment that the party is not just ready to administer. They could vote him down easy enough, but he won't stay down. It is the dread of what he may do, if he is sat down upon too vigorously, that gives them pain and makes them dread to do what they want to do. The fact is, Tilden is the elephant on the hands of the democratic party, and they don't know what to do with him.

About a Former Knoxvillean.
A Washington letter of March 19th, published in a late issue of the Galveston News, has the following:

The following was mailed from this city to-day by Maj. Moore, formerly editor of the San Antonio Express, and adjutant general of the troops that entered San Antonio as described in the letter. Maj. Moore served with Gen. Grant during the war, and was identified with his last administration as supervising special agent of the treasury, in which capacity he commended himself to the personal favor of the president. Mr. Bell is a citizen of San Antonio, almost ninety years old, in full possession of all his faculties. Col. Upson confirms the incidents referred to:
—Gen. U. S. Grant, March 17, 1880.
—Gen. U. S. Grant, San Antonio, Texas—Dear General: The dispatches announce this morning that you will return to the United States via San Antonio, and I take this first moment to write a letter introducing my venerable and dear personal friend, Mr. Samuel Bell, to your favorable acquaintance. Mr. Bell is a native of Knoxville, Tenn., and a long resident of San Antonio. When the war broke out and the United States troops in Texas surrendered their arms to the Confederate authorities by order of Twigg, Mr. Bell (in 1861) met the paroled soldiers on the outskirts of San Antonio and marched at their head (through town) bearing aloft a beautiful national flag. He perceived that flag within the enemy's lines throughout the civil war, in defiance of threats, until, in July, 1865, when our troops entered San Antonio, after a long and tedious march from Shreveport, La., and were met in the eastern confines of San Antonio by the same patriot, with form bent and locks silvered under more than seventy winters, marched at the head of our column to our camping ground, with the same flag floating over a reunited land. I wish that Mr. Bell may find it in his heart to place the flag, so historic in your keeping, to be preserved with a suitable inscription, in some national museum with the other trophies you may have long, long time hence bequeathed to a grateful country. Longstreet, Thomas, Kirby Smith and a host of others afterward renowned in the war on both sides, were among those who surrendered to the Confederate authorities in Texas at the time referred to, and the reminiscences of Mr. Bell (who was then on terms of intimacy with the military leaders) are extremely interesting. I am sure it will be one of the noblest acts of his life when Mr. Bell is permitted by Divine Providence to exchange greetings with the hero of the late war.

Very truly yours,
W. BOWEN MOORE.
Mr. Bell is well known to all the older citizens of Knoxville.

LETTER FROM SEVIER COUNTY.

The Proposed Railroad—Fruit Crops, Etc.
SEVIERVILLE, April 14, 1880.

MR. EDITOR: On Thursday, 8th inst., as I started to Knoxville the snow began to fall about 7 a. m., and I traveled till 2 p. m. in about as hard a fall of snow as is usually experienced in mid-winter. I spent the night with Mr. E. H. Flenniken in Knoxville and the next day I went south of the river to the old homestead of Michael French, deceased, spending the night with Mr. J. D. French. This is the farm advertised in your paper for sale the 25th inst. Mr. Flenniken represented a sixth interest, J. D. French one and the writer one.

After consultation, the farm was sold to Mr. Flenniken, and the sale stopped. He gets possession January 1st, 1881. Coming home by way of Stock Creek Valley, I found that, notwithstanding the cold snap, there were peaches in abundance, while the wheat crop looked fine, especially on Boyd's creek, but that heavy hail storm Monday beat it down badly. The trees were very much damaged.

Monday, 12th, I was at Dandridge. It was circuit court, and one of the big days. Hon. L. C. Houk spoke, and the county republican convention was also held, assembling quite a crowd of people. Not one-half were able to get in to hear the judge speak. Dr. Lyle also made a few remarks, but did not claim a division of time.

I met many old acquaintances, and quite a number of new ones. Monday morning, while riding to Dandridge, I noticed large ponds of water frozen entirely over, and it was cold enough to finish the fruit. Even grape vine buds seemed to be killed.

Chancery court is in session in Sevierville. Quite a number of visiting attorneys are in attendance. Among them are Capt. S. P. Rowan, of Maryville. He tells me he is looking in the direction of senatorial honors from the counties of Blount, Jefferson, Cocke and Sevier.

Maj. Gamble, of Blount, is a candidate. Mr. W. L. Duggan, of Sevier, and, as we are reliably informed, Mr. Cockrill, of Cooke are also aspirants. Capt. Will A. McTeer, of Blount, is spoken of as being the choice of a large number of voters for representative. No county could furnish a better candidate, nor could they send a more gallant representative to Nashville. McTeer has been tried in many responsible places, and has ever been found equal to the emergency. He is a noble, Christian gentleman.

Mr. W. C. Murphy, of Sevierville, received a letter a day or two since from a responsible railroad company, requesting the citizens of Sevier county to hold a railroad meeting as early as possible, as the company wishes to connect the road running to Warm Springs, in North Carolina, or from Wolf Creek, thence down through Sevier, by way of Sevierville, on to Knoxville, and thence to tap the Cincinnati Southern. This plan meets with the approval of all we have heard speak of it. Mr. Murphy will call a meeting, and steps will be taken at once. No railroad ever ran through a more beautiful valley anywhere in East Tennessee.

Republican State Convention.

OFFICE STATE REP. EX. COM., NASHVILLE, TENN., Feb. 6, 1880.
A Convention of Republicans of Tennessee will be held at Nashville, in the hall of the House of Representatives, at 12 o'clock, m., on May 5th, next, for the purpose of naming a candidate for Governor of Tennessee, and to select twenty-four delegates to attend the National Republican Convention, which meets at Chicago, Ill., on June 23d. Also, to transact such other business as may come before it. The ratio of representation in our State Convention will be one delegate from each county in the State, and one additional delegate from each county for every two hundred votes, or fractional part of two hundred over one hundred, cast for Republican candidates for Electors in 1876.

JOSEPH R. DILLIN,
Chairman State Rep. Ex. Com.
